

Circular Letter #12
August 25, 1925.

To Supervisors of Schools, and
High School Principals.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

HIGH AND CONTINUATION SCHOOL TEACHERS.

In all high schools where the enrollment is less than 500 students the principal will teach two classes daily. The rest of the day will be spent in supervision and office work. Where the enrollment is greater than 500 the principal will spend all of his time in supervision and office work.

All high school teachers, with exception of science, will teach six periods daily.

Continuation teachers will teach six classes daily when the school day is divided into seven periods and <sup>five</sup> classes when the day is divided into six periods.

Supervisors and principals will govern themselves accordingly when making up their programs.

Yours very truly,

(Sigend) Juan B. Huyke,
Commissioner of Education.
